요약 및 평가※

■ 최근 우리 경제는 건설업 부진이 지속되는 가운데 대외 여건도 악화되며 경기가 전월과 비슷한 정도의 낮은 수준에 머물러 있음.

- 건설업 부진이 지속된 가운데 제조업도 조정되며 생산 증가세가 약화
 - 반도체 수출과 생산이 양호한 흐름을 유지하였으며, 관련 설비투자도 높은 증가세를 지속
 - 그러나 자동차 등 관세가 큰 폭으로 인상된 품목을 중심으로 對미국 수출이 부진하였으며, 이에 따라 제조업생산의 증가폭도 축소
 - 건설업생산이 위축된 가운데, 서비스업생산도 낮은 증가세에 그치며 전산업 생산이 감소로 전환
- 소비심리가 회복세를 보이며 내수 여건이 개선될 가능성을 시사하였으나, 상호관세 유예 종료가 다가오며 통상 관련 불확실성은 높은 수준을 지속

※ 별도의 언급이 없을 경우 모든 증가율은 전년동월대비 기준임.

■ 건설업 부진과 미국 관세인상이 지속적인 경기 하방 압력으로 작용하는 가운데, 생산 증가세가 전반적으로 약화되는 등 경기가 낮은 수준에 머물러 있음.

● 5월 전산업생산은 건설업 부진이 지속된 가운데, 그동안 양호한 증가세를 유지했던 광공업생산이 조정되며 0.8% 감소

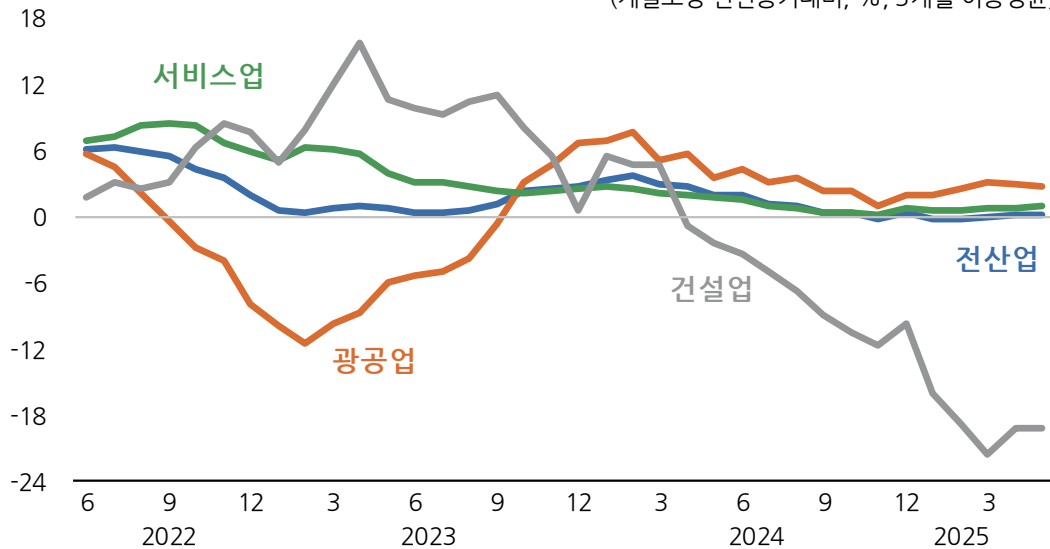

- 건설업생산(-21.1% → -20.8%)은 극심한 부진을 지속

● 내수가 건설투자를 중심으로 부진한 가운데 미국 관세인상의 영향으로 수출이 낮은 증가세에 그쳤으며, 통상 불확실성도 높은 수준을 지속

- 對미국 수출이 고율 관세가 부과되는 자동차를 중심으로 부진한 모습
- 상호관세 유예기간 종료를 앞두고 협상이 지연되는 등 통상 불확실성이 높은 수준을 지속 하였으며, 이에 따라 수출기업심리도 악화

 - 5월 승용차는 개별소비세 인하의 영향으로 13.4%의 높은 증가세를 지속하였으며, 개별 소비세 인하가 연말까지 연장됨에 따라 당분간 양호한 흐름을 유지할 가능성
 - 반면, 승용차를 제외한 소매판매(-1.6%)는 가구(-10.8%), 화장품(-8.5%), 가전제품(-6.1%)을 중심으로 부진을 지속
- 서비스소비도 숙박·음식점업을 중심으로 낮은 증가세에 머무름.
 - 숙박·음식점업(-1.0%), 교육서비스업(-0.9%) 등 소비와 밀접한 주요 서비스업의 생산이 감소세를 지속
- 반면, 6월 소비자심리지수(108.7)가 전월(101.8)에 이어 큰 폭으로 상승하면서 소비심리는 회복세를 보임.
 - 고금리 기조가 점차 완화되고 제2회 추가경정예산이 편성되면서 향후 소비 회복에 긍정적 요인으로 작용할 것으로 기대됨.

- 다만, 일부 선행지표가 개선세를 유지하는 등 향후 시차를 두고 건설투자 부진이 완만하게 완화될 가능성
 - 건설수주와 건축착공면적의 회복세는 시차를 두고 건설투자에 점차 반영될 것으로 판단됨.
 - 한편, PF 조달이 원활하지 않은 사업장의 경우, 수주가 착공으로 이어지지 못하면서 건설투자 회복을 지연시키는 요인으로 작용할 수 있음.

Summary and Assessment※

- The Korean economy remains at a similarly subdued level as in the previous month, due to continued weakness in the construction sector and worsening external conditions.
 - Construction remains depressed, while manufacturing is experiencing a downturn, dampening production growth.
 - Semiconductor exports and production continued to underpin favorable trend, while investment in related equipment sustained high growth.
 - However, exports to the U.S. weakened, particularly in categories such as motor vehicles affected by steep tariff hikes, resulting in slower growth in manufacturing production.
 - All industry production turned to a decrease as construction output contracted and services posted only modest growth.
 - While consumer sentiment is on the mend, pointing to a possible improvement in domestic demand conditions, trade-related uncertainty remains elevated with the expiry of the mutual tariff suspension approaching.

※ All growth figures are on a year-on-year basis unless otherwise noted. This document is an English translation of the original Korean version. In case of any ambiguities or discrepancies, the Korean version shall prevail.

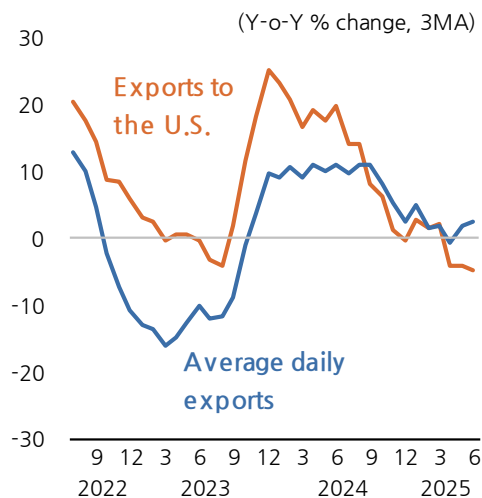

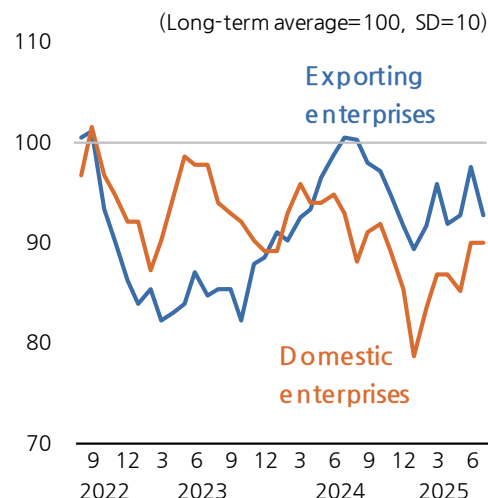

- With construction stalling and U.S. tariff pressures consistently weighing on the economy, production growth has broadly decelerated, leaving overall economic activity subdued.
- All industry production declined 0.8% in May, as amid continued weakness in construction, industrial (mining and manufacturing) production adjusted from its previous gains.
 - Construction production (–21.1% → –20.8%) remained in deep contraction.
 - Industrial production (5.1% → 0.2%) saw its growth narrow, as declines in motor vehicles (–3.2%), metal processing (–4.9%), and pharmaceuticals (–10.7%) offset robust gains in semiconductors (18.1%).
 - Services production (0.9% → 1.0%) recorded only modest growth, as increases in financial and insurance services (3.6%) and human health and social work activities (7.1%) were offset by declines in retail and wholesale (–1.6%) and business facility management (–3.0%).
- The inventory-to-shipment ratio in the manufacturing sector rose (102.4% → 104.4%), while the average capacity utilization rate declined (73.8% → 71.7%).
 - Shipments declined by 1.6% on a seasonally adjusted month-on-month basis, led by a 4.0% contraction in domestic demand.

- Domestic demand weakened mainly in sluggish construction investment, while exports registered only modest growth amid continued pressure from U.S. tariff hikes, with trade uncertainty remaining elevated.

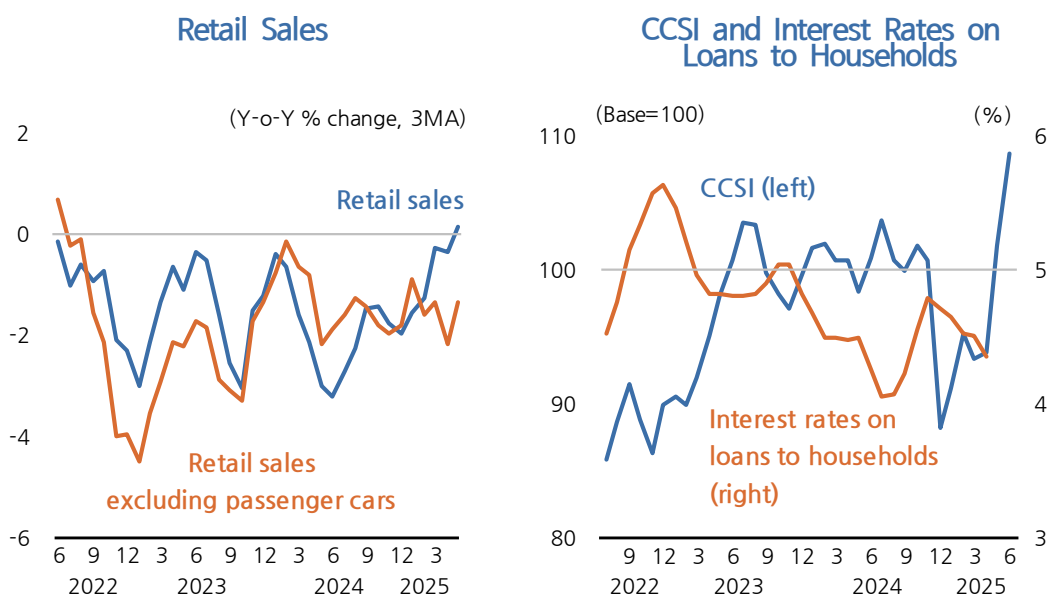

- Exports to the U.S. underperformed, particularly in motor vehicles affected by steep tariffs.
- Trade uncertainty remained elevated as negotiations stalled ahead of the expiration of the mutual tariff suspension, weighing on exporter sentiment as a result.
- Nevertheless, some positive signals are evident, as reflected in the continued resilience of semiconductor exports and the recovery of consumer sentiment.

Average Daily Exports

Business Conditions Outlook (BSI):
Manufacturing

■ Consumption remained subdued, while consumer sentiment showed signs of a swift recovery.

- Retail sales (-0.2%) continued to edge down, despite strong growth in passenger car sales, reflecting weakness in other categories.
 - In May, passenger car sales maintained strong growth (13.4%), supported by excise tax cuts, and are expected to sustain favorable growth as the tax reduction has been extended through the end of the year.
 - In contrast, retail sales excluding passenger cars remained weak (-1.6%), led by declines in furniture (-10.8%), cosmetics (-8.5%), and household electrical appliances (-6.1%).
- Service consumption also registered only moderate growth, led by accommodation and food services.
 - Production in major consumption-related service industries continued to decline, including accommodation and food services (-1.0%) and educational services (-0.9%).
- By contrast, the Composite Consumer Sentiment Index (108.7) for June rose sharply from the previous month (101.8), indicating a recovery in consumer sentiment.
 - As high interest rates gradually ease and the second supplementary budget has been finalized, these factors are expected to support the recovery of consumption going forward.

■ Equipment investment continued to post strong growth, supported by steady momentum in semiconductors and a sharp expansion in volatile transport equipment, while other sectors remained weak.

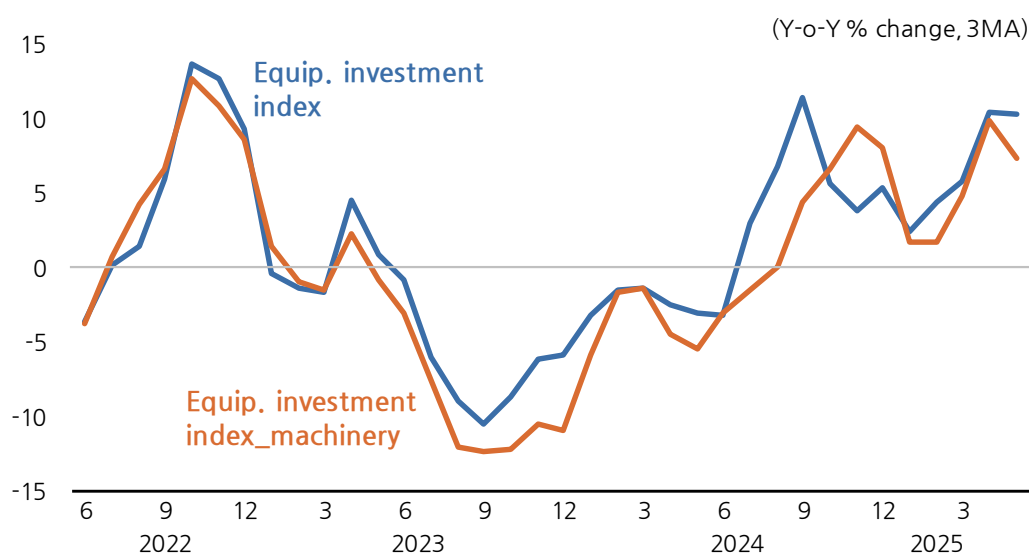

● In May, equipment investment (8.4% → 7.5%) maintained solid growth, supported by semiconductor-related and transport equipment investment.

- Semiconductor-related investment remained firm, with gains in semiconductor manufacturing equipment (15.9% → 12.9%) and precision instruments (14.5% → 9.0%).
- Transport equipment investment (19.1% → 26.1%) saw sustained high growth in motor vehicles (16.9% → 13.9%) alongside a sharp rise in the more volatile other transport equipment (18.8% → 49.8%).
- Machinery imports increased in June (13.6% → 8.4%), driven by growth in semiconductor manufacturing equipment (26.1% → 38.8%), suggesting that robust momentum in semiconductor investment may be sustained.

● However, machinery investment outside semiconductors remained weak amid elevated external uncertainty.

- Overall machinery investment (0.6%) recorded only modest growth, reflecting declines in general industrial machinery (−5.9% → −3.3%) and other equipment (−4.0% → −13.8%).
- Given the heightened trade uncertainty and deteriorating business sentiment, the sluggishness in machinery investment excluding semiconductors is likely to persist for the time being.

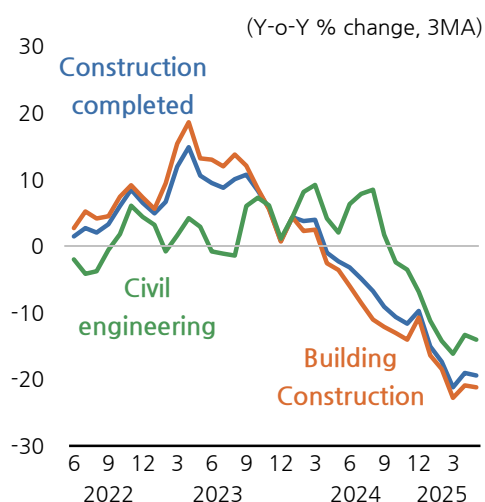

Equipment Investment Index

■ Construction investment remained sluggish for a prolonged period, although improvements in leading indicators persisted.

- The value of construction completed in May (-20.8%) remained significantly down, following the sharp decline seen in the previous month (-21.1%).
 - It declined by 3.9% on a seasonally adjusted month-on-month basis, following a 1.4% decrease in the previous month, underscoring the deepening slump in the construction sector.
 - Building construction (-23.5% → -23.3%) remained sluggish across both residential and non-residential sectors, while civil engineering (-13.3% → -12.8%) also declined sharply, primarily driven by plant construction.
- The contraction in construction investment is expected to ease gradually with a time lag, as reflected in sustained improvement in a number of leading indicators.
 - The recovery in construction orders received and floor area of construction starts (floor area commenced) is likely to gradually feed through to construction investment with a time lag.
 - However, where project financing (PF) remains constrained, new orders may not translate into actual project commencements, potentially further delaying the recovery of construction investment.

■ Exports remained subdued as non-ICT items remained sluggish amid continued uncertainty in the global trade environment.

- In June, exports increased by 4.3%, up from the previous month's decline (-1.3%), largely driven by a temporary surge in ship exports.

- By item (on an average daily basis), exports of highly volatile ships (67.4%) rose sharply, while ICT products (8.6%), led by semiconductors, also maintained solid growth. However, exports of other items remained weak.

- * Average daily exports excluding ICT and ships (3-month average, %): (Apr.) -3.9 → (May) -3.7 → (Jun.) -2.1

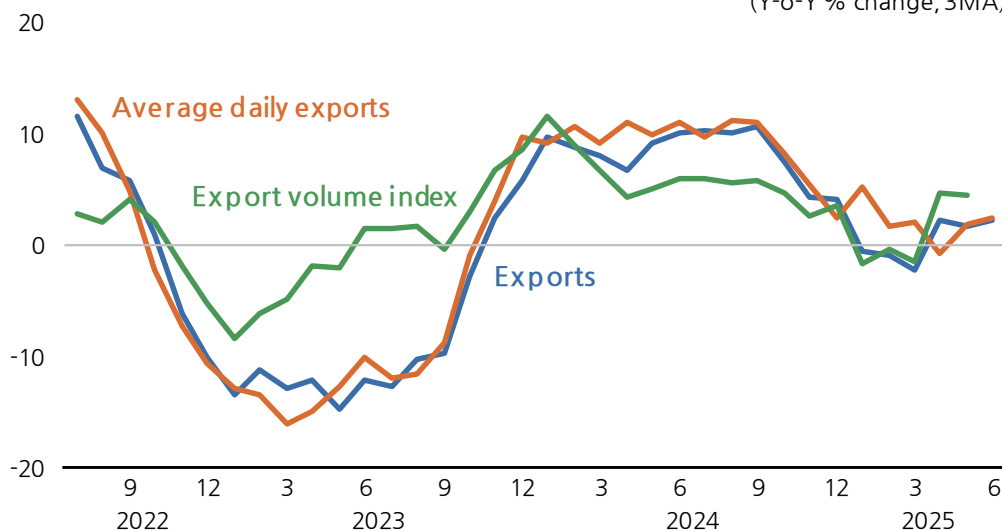

- By destination (on an average daily basis), exports to the U.S. posted modest growth of 1.9%, led by a sharp decline in motor vehicles (-16.1%) subject to steep tariffs while exports to China also edged down by 0.4%, reflecting a notable decline in semiconductor exports (-6.2%).

- Imports (3.3%) rose slightly, driven by semiconductor equipment (27.9%), while the trade balance remained in surplus at $9.08 billion.

- Meanwhile, export conditions deteriorated amid the prolonged global trade disputes centered on the U.S.

■ The labor market remained subdued, as both the employment rate and labor force participation rate declined.

- In May, the number of employed persons increased year-on-year (194,000 → 245,000), largely due to base effects, but decreased by 44,000 on a seasonally adjusted month-on-month basis.
 - The decline in construction (-150,000 → -106,000) and manufacturing (-124,000 → -67,000) employment narrowed, largely due to base effects.
 - The service sector maintained strong growth (597,000 → 540,000), led by human health and social work (233,000) and professional, scientific, and technical activities (117,000), though gains somewhat moderated as growth in information and communication (72,000 → 49,000) slowed and accommodation and food services (1,000 → -67,000) declined.
- In addition, the employment rate and labor force participation rate declined, reflecting continued weakness in the labor market.
 - The seasonally adjusted employment rate fell to 62.9% from 63.1% in the previous month due to sluggishness in construction and accommodation and food services, while the labor force participation rate also edged down slightly to 64.7% from 64.8%.
 - Meanwhile, the employment rate for those in their 20s (60.5% → 60.9%) continued to rise from the previous month, indicating a gradual easing of weakness.

■ Inflation remained stable as domestic demand stayed weak.

- In June, consumer prices rose by 2.2%, up from 1.9% in the previous month, mainly reflecting base effects.
 - Consumer price inflation edged up slightly, largely due to base effects from the stability of agricultural and petroleum product prices in June last year, which resulted in a smaller decline in agricultural product prices ($-4.7\% \rightarrow -1.8\%$) and a modest increase in petroleum product prices ($-2.3\% \rightarrow 0.3\%$).
- However, core inflation held steady at 2.0%, unchanged from the previous month, indicating that overall inflationary pressures remained contained.
 - Supply-side price pressures persisted in certain items, such as processed foods ($4.1\% \rightarrow 4.6\%$), but underlying inflation remained around 2% as domestic demand stayed weak.
 - Meanwhile, inflation expectations continued to decline, potentially exerting downward pressure on future inflation.

■ Stock price and exchange rate volatility increased slightly, yet stock prices rose sharply while credit markets remained stable.

- In June, the won-dollar exchange rate fell by 2.2% amid dollar weakness, while the KOSPI jumped 13.9% on improved investor sentiment, including policy expectations related to the newly inaugurated government.

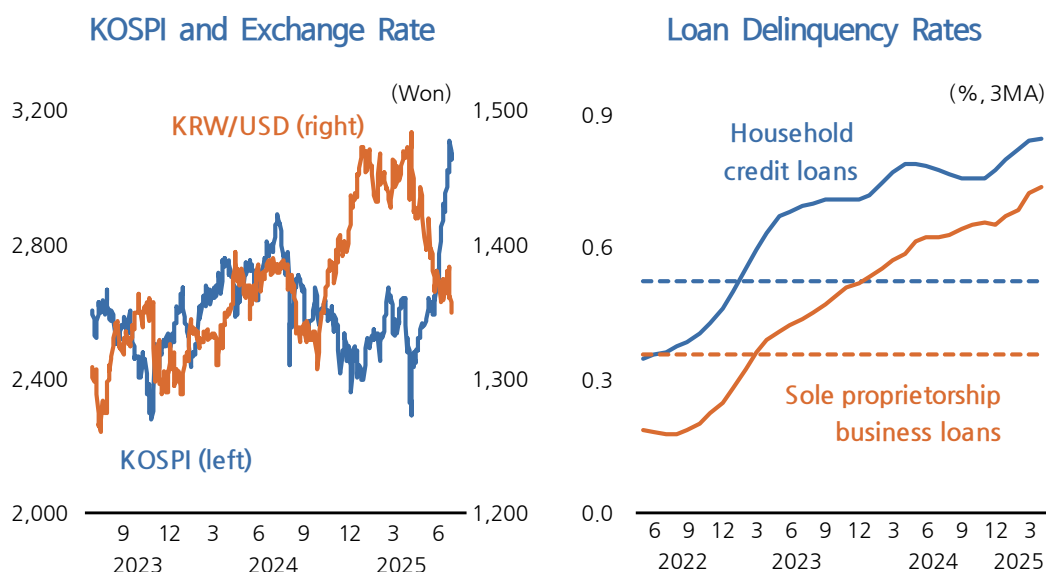

- However, heightened geopolitical risks in the Middle East led to an increase in both the KOSPI 200 Volatility Index (monthly average, 19.7 → 24.3) and daily fluctuations in the won-dollar exchange rate (0.52 → 0.64).

- Credit markets remained broadly stable, with the CP spread (29bp) staying below its long-term average (44bp), as in the previous month, and the CDS premium declining (28.8 → 26.0).

- Meanwhile, household loans increased by a relatively large margin in May, following the previous month, reflecting the recent rise in housing transactions.

- Household loan increase (all financial sectors, trillion won): (Mar.) 0.7 → (Apr.) 5.3 → (May) 6.0

- The delinquency rate of domestic banks continued to rise in April, primarily driven by the corporate sector, amid ongoing weakness in domestic demand.

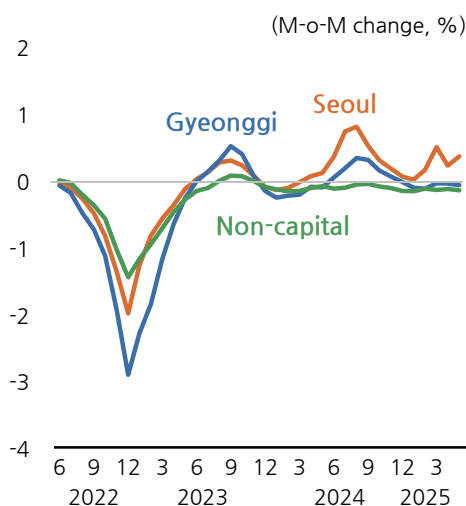

Note: The dashed lines represent the long-term average since 2015.

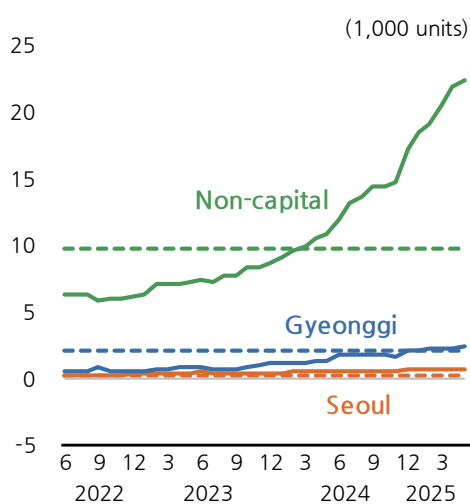

■ Housing sales prices in Seoul rose at a faster pace, while the housing market outside Seoul remained weak, with falling sales prices, particularly in non-capital areas, and a rise in unsold completed housing units.

- In May, nationwide housing sales prices continued to edge down slightly (month-on-month, $-0.02\% \rightarrow -0.02\%$).
 - Jeonse prices remained flat ($0.00\% \rightarrow 0.00\%$) from the previous month, while monthly rents maintained modest growth ($0.05\% \rightarrow 0.05\%$).
- By region, Seoul saw a larger increase in housing sales prices ($0.25\% \rightarrow 0.38\%$) as transaction volumes rose (year-on-year, 28.7%) ahead of the implementation of the third-phase stress DSR.
- However, housing sales prices outside Seoul continued to decline, and the housing market weakened further, as evidenced by the rise in unsold completed housing units, particularly in non-capital areas.
 - Housing sales prices in Gyeonggi-do ($-0.02\% \rightarrow -0.05\%$), Incheon-si ($-0.07\% \rightarrow -0.07\%$), and non-capital area ($-0.11\% \rightarrow -0.12\%$) all continued to decline from the previous month.
 - Unsold completed housing units increased significantly ($26,400 \rightarrow 27,000$), led by non-capital areas ($21,900 \rightarrow 22,400$).

- Global financial markets stabilized as geopolitical tensions in the Middle East eased, but downside risks to the global economy persist, as indicated by ongoing uncertainty in the trade environment.

- Global goods trade remained sluggish due to the impact of U.S. tariff hikes, while production growth slowed in major economies outside Asia.

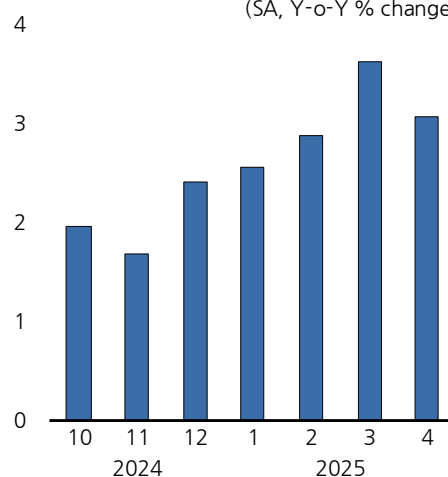

World Maritime Trade

(Y-o-Y % change, 3MA)

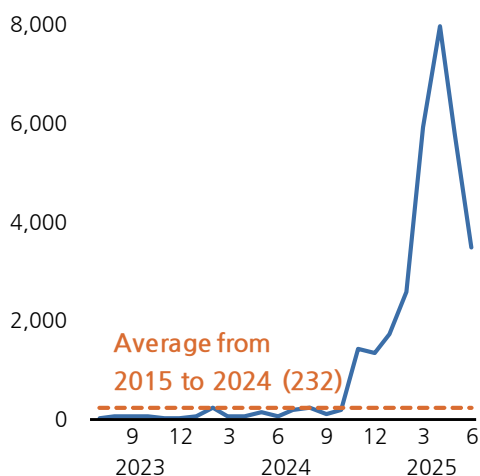

World Industrial Production

(SA, Y-o-Y % change)

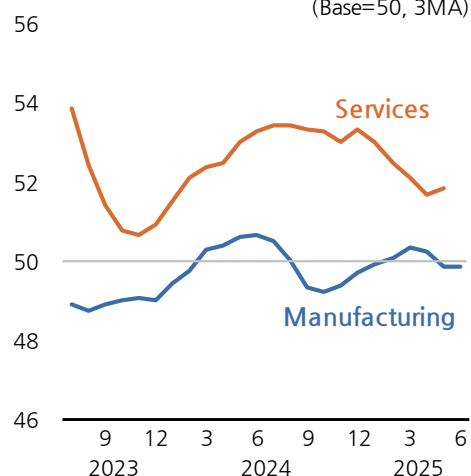

- Despite recent U.S.-China trade negotiations, persistently high uncertainty over U.S. trade policy continued to delay the recovery of consumer and business sentiment in major economies.

U.S. Trade Policy Uncertainty Index

World Manufacturing and Services PMI

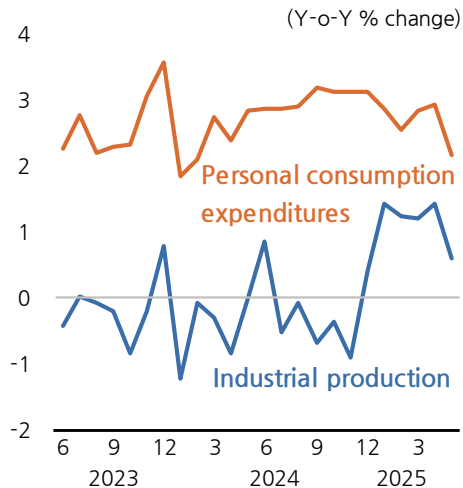

(Base=50, 3MA)

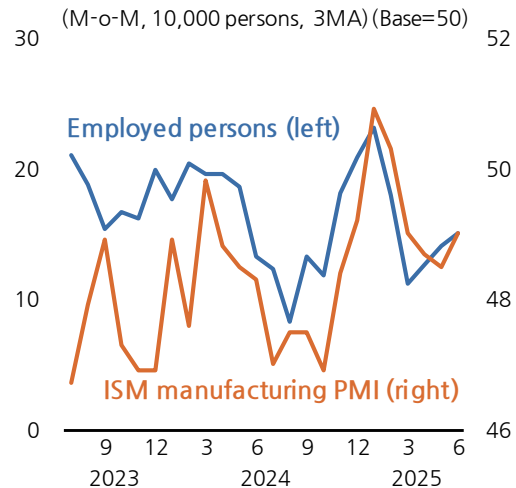

- The U.S. economy is expected to slow, as trade policy uncertainty dampens growth in manufacturing output and household consumption, while sentiment indicators remain subdued.

- Nevertheless, the labor market remained favorable, with employment gains accelerating and the unemployment rate remaining low.

U.S. Industrial Production and Personal Consumption Expenditures

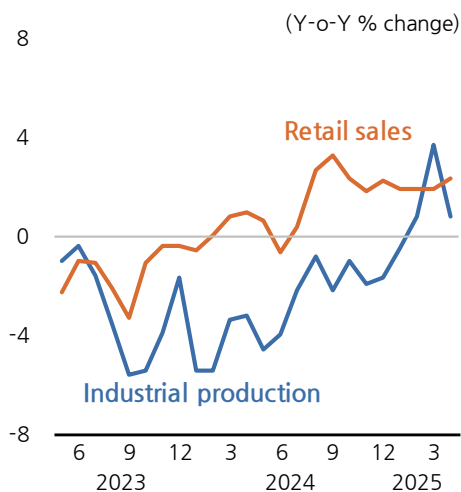

U.S. Employment and ISM Manufacturing PMI

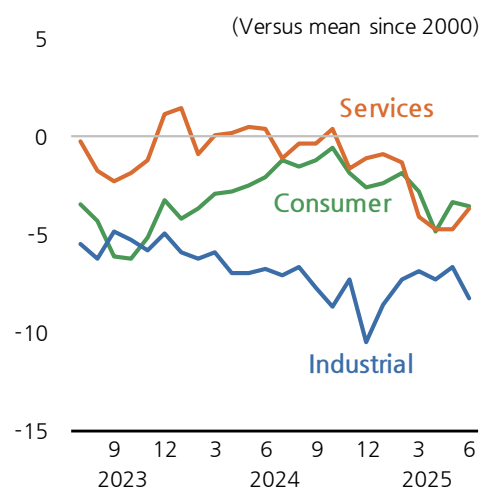

- Despite accommodative monetary policy and improved consumption, the Eurozone economy is expected to experience only a limited recovery, as high external uncertainty continues.

- Despite the rise in retail sales and improvements in investment indicators, most economic sentiment measures remained subdued, suggesting that downward pressure on economic activity persists.

Industrial Production and Retail Sales in Eurozone

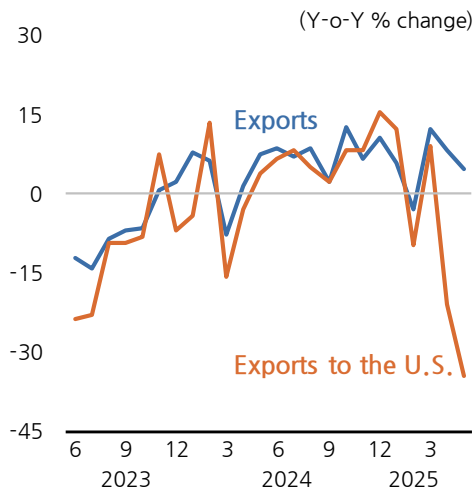

Economic Sentiment Indicators in Eurozone

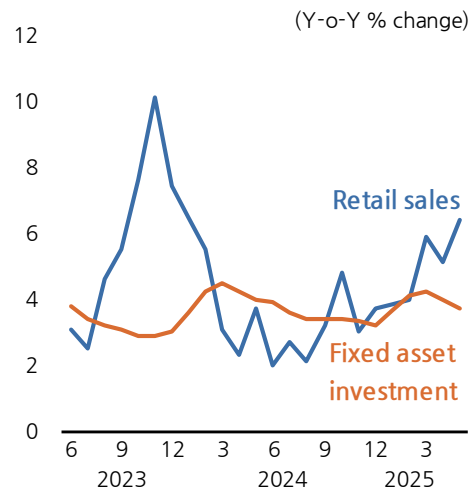

- China's export growth softened due to U.S. tariff hikes, yet consumption and manufacturing investment indicators remained favorable, supported by stronger policy stimulus.

- With domestic demand indicators, excluding real estate investment, showing improvement and external uncertainty easing somewhat amid U.S.-China trade negotiations, the Chinese economy is projected to grow at a mid-4% range this year.

China's Exports

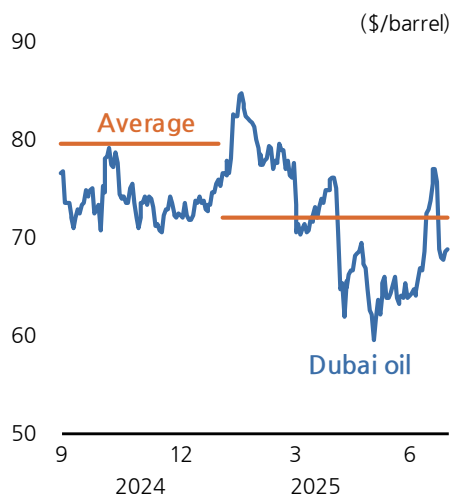

China's Retail Sales and Fixed Asset Investment

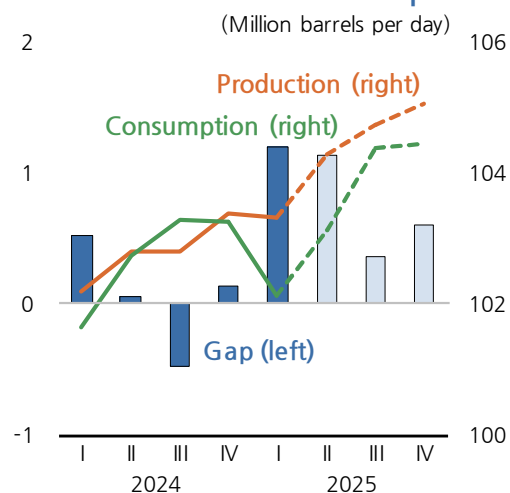

- International oil prices surged in June as military conflict between Israel and Iran escalated, before retreating sharply as tensions between the two countries eased.

- While heightened geopolitical tensions in the Middle East led major investment banks to raise their oil price forecasts, upward pressure on prices remains limited, as reflected in expectations of expanding crude inventories amid excess supply.

Oil Price

World Liquid Fuels Production and Consumption

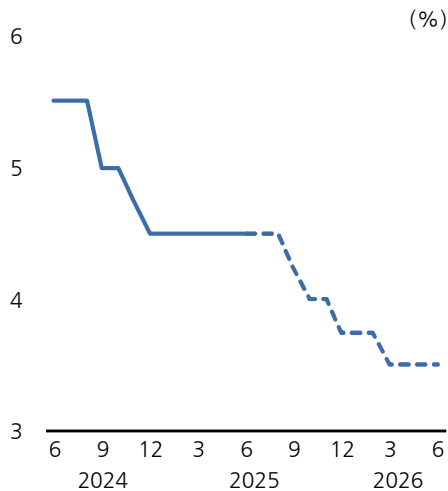

Note: Projections beyond Q2 2025 are based on EIA forecasts.

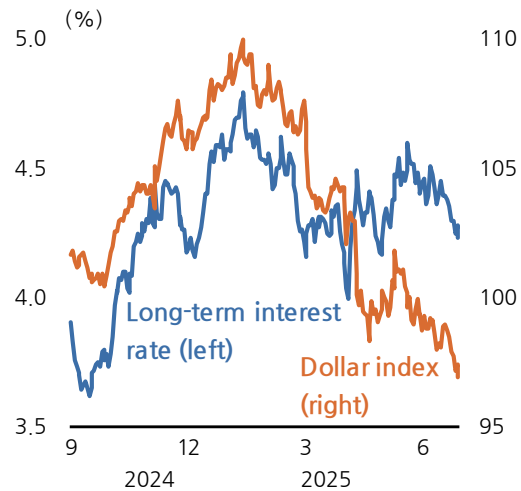

- Global financial markets experienced increased volatility in key indicators yet stabilized swiftly as geopolitical tensions in the Middle East eased.

- In June, U.S. long-term interest rates and the dollar index declined, reflecting continued easing of major inflation indicators and weaker growth prospects that prompted a modest downward adjustment in policy rate expectations.

U.S. Federal Funds Rate Outlook

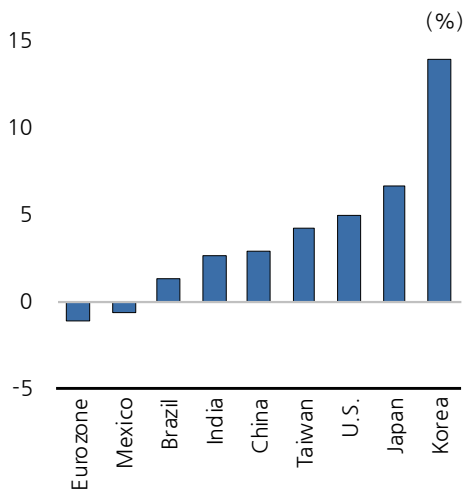

U.S. Long-Term Interest Rates and Dollar Index

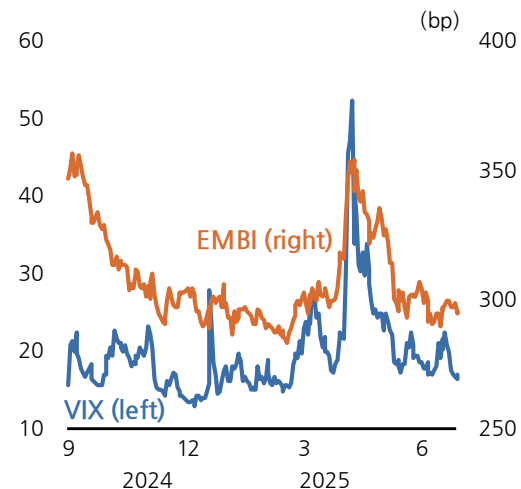

- Stock prices in major economies dipped briefly but rebounded to maintain an upward trend, while investor sentiment recovered rapidly, as evidenced by lower equity volatility in the U.S. and narrower spreads and CDS premiums in emerging markets.
